

Social media has done much more harm than good to society.

Do you agree or disagree?

Social networking platforms are becoming increasingly prevalent today. While some argue that its impact in the world is mostly harmful due to the fact that it isolates and divides people, my view is that social media is much more of a positive development because of how it improves communication and allows people to present themselves in a positive way.

The negative effects of social media cannot be denied. Firstly, excessive social media use can isolate people and contribute to feelings of depression. For example, many individuals spend hours interacting online rather than socializing in person, resulting in fewer face-to-face interactions and weaker relationships. Moreover, social media can divide people by creating echo chambers where users are only exposed to opinions similar to their own. For instance, people who are prejudiced against another group may be repeatedly exposed to content that supports their views, reinforcing those prejudices and further dividing society.

From an opposing perspective, social media provides numerous benefits, particularly in terms of communication and self-image. Firstly, it greatly conveniences communication, allowing people to connect regardless of how far apart they live. For example, friends and family members living in different countries can communicate instantly through social media platforms. Furthermore, social media allows individuals to present a positive image of themselves. This is because users have considerable control over what others see and know about them on their profiles. For example, people can share photographs from their travels, academic achievements, or professional accomplishments, allowing them to show the best version of themselves.

In conclusion, while it is possible for social media to isolate people and create societal divisions, its benefits of long distance communication and self-presentation are far more significant. Therefore, I believe that social media is far more positive than it is negative.
